Introduction:

ASM's CSIT College organized a seminar on “Entrepreneurship Essentials” to encourage students to view entrepreneurship as a promising career path. The session was conducted by Prof. Gururaj Dangare, Head – Management & Startup Incubation & Innovation Cell, PIBM Pune. He shared valuable insights on innovation, business idea generation, and the startup ecosystem in India. Prof. Dangare also guided students on balancing academics with entrepreneurial aspirations. The seminar motivated participants to think about active and passive income opportunities, while also creating awareness about government schemes available for student entrepreneurs. It proved to be an enriching and inspiring learning experience

The inaugural session began with dignitaries on the dais, including Dr. Lalit Kanore (Principal), Asst. Prof. Sarita Goyal (Vice Principal, Commerce & Management), Dr. C. D. Sonawane (Vice Principal, Science), and the distinguished Guest Speaker, Prof. Gururaj Dangare.

Objectives:

- 1 To introduce students to the fundamentals and importance of entrepreneurship.
- 2 To encourage students to balance their academic studies with entrepreneurial ambitions.
- 3 To provide knowledge about innovation, startup creation, and the process of developing business ideas.
- 4 To guide students on exploring opportunities for both active and passive income.
- 5 To create awareness about various government schemes, funding options, and incubation support available for budding entrepreneurs

Detailed Report:

The seminar on “Entrepreneurship Essentials” at ASM's CSIT College began with a warm welcome to dignitaries, faculty, and students, followed by the introduction of the resource person, Prof. Gururaj Dangare. His remarkable achievements in management, innovation, and startup incubation were highlighted, making students aware of his contribution to nurturing young entrepreneurs. The program commenced with the auspicious lighting of the lamp by faculty members, student representatives, and the guest of honor, symbolizing the spread of knowledge, wisdom, and inspiration.

In his expert session, Prof. Dangare emphasized the importance of entrepreneurship in today's economy, encouraging students to look beyond job opportunities and focus on creating new ventures. He highlighted the need for an entrepreneurial mindset, training young minds to think critically, solve problems, and treat failures as stepping stones to success. He guided students on balancing academics with entrepreneurial ambitions, stressing that while education builds a foundation, innovation must go hand in hand. Through real-life examples of student entrepreneurs, he motivated participants to integrate classroom learning with practical business ideas.

Prof. Dangare further discussed the role of creativity and innovation in idea generation, urging students to observe problems in society and design solutions using a simple approach of identifying, designing, testing, and implementing. He also introduced the concept of active and passive income, explaining how students should aim to develop at least one passive source alongside their active efforts.

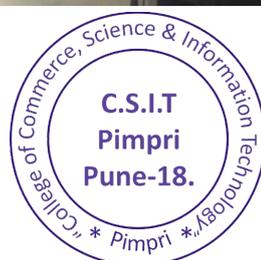

His insights into government schemes, incubation centers, grants, and mentorship programs provided practical guidance for aspiring entrepreneurs. To make the session relatable, he shared inspiring startup success stories, explaining challenges faced in early stages and highlighting persistence and adaptability as keys to success.

The seminar concluded with an engaging Q&A session, where students raised questions about balancing studies with startups, risk-taking, and investments. Many shared their own business ideas and received encouraging feedback from the resource person.

Prof. Dangare advised starting small, testing ideas locally, and building strong networks with mentors. The interaction created a lively and motivating atmosphere, with several students expressing enthusiasm to pursue their ideas.

A formal vote of thanks followed, expressing gratitude to Prof. Dangare for his valuable guidance, the faculty and student coordinators for organizing the event, and the management of ASM's CSIT College for their support.

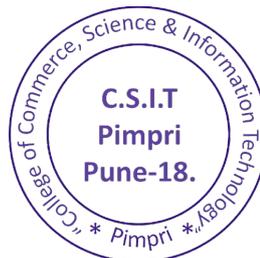

Overall, the seminar provided valuable insights on developing an entrepreneurial mindset, balancing academics with business ambitions, generating innovative ideas, and understanding active and passive income. It also made students aware of government schemes and incubation support available for startups. The practical examples and motivational guidance inspired students to think beyond limitations, build persistence, and explore new ventures alongside their studies.

Outcomes:

- 1 Students gained clarity on how to balance their education with entrepreneurial pursuits.
- 2 They were motivated to think creatively and explore entrepreneurship as a promising career path.
- 3 Participants became aware of opportunities to generate both active and passive income sources.
- 4 They developed an understanding of financial support, incubation facilities, and government schemes for startups.
- 5 The session provided practical knowledge on innovation, idea generation, and early-stage challenges of startups.
- 6 Students left with enhanced confidence and inspiration to work on their business ideas alongside academic studies.
